Guitar Accessory Manufacturer Produces High Performance Capo

December 24, 2013 – It can be difficult to find quality and long-lasting guitar accessories. Many private instrument shops will sell guitar capos, however, finding one that is meant for high-performance and high quality can be a challenge. Now a new company, xGuitarx has designed a longer lasting guitar capo intended for high-performance capability.

The guitar capos designed by xGuitarx are made of a lightweight and high quality material that fits perfectly on 6-string electric or acoustic guitars. These capos protect your instruments by not scratching the instrument, stays in tune with a great intonation, and performers can quickly change position between frets on stage with one hand making the capo extremely useful.

The capos designed by xGuitarx are a beautiful chrome design that looks professional with any instrument whether it is for rehearsal or performance purposes. xGuitarx capos also offer a lifetime guarantee so musicians of all stages know their capo will last.

The most popular capo by xGuitarx would be the X1 Capo which is designed accurately for great performance. This strong and elegant guitar capo uses a mechanical spring with internal memory to provide strength and is fatigue-resistant.

The X1 Capo is built of high quality alloy with a new structure design and allows musicians to easily make fast changes on stage with one hand. The capo can be conveniently stored on the headstock when not in use and is incredibly simple to use in order to assure the guitar stays in tune with a great intonation.

Products by xGuitarx are strong, durable, and made with high quality alloy with an elegant design. The concise and curved shape and design allow the capos made by xGuitarx to fit both electric and acoustic guitars well with an excellent hand feeling.

The high quality steel spring allow the capo to have internal memory that can withstand wear and tear. The capo also features a silicone pad that conforms perfectly to the fingerboard and frets, insuring excellent intonation and protects the instrument from scratches.

xGuitarx offers a lifetime guarantee for all products they make. Customers simply contact the customer support team and they would be happy to send a replacement. The company is so sure that customers will love their capo, they also offer a money-back guarantee for a full refund and no questions asked.
